Market developments

Welcome to a new month and the September market review. Historically, while September has often been a weak month for risk markets, but this year defied expectations. Despite a brief shake-up following revised non-farm payroll numbers, the S&P 500 Index ended the month at an all-time high. A key factor behind the resilience of risk assets has been the prospect of further rate cuts, with no immediate signs of a hard landing on the horizon. Little appears poised to disrupt this upward trajectory.

As the easing cycle continues, major central banks once again cut rates, with the US Federal Reserve (Fed) joining in. On September 18, the Fed reduced the federal funds rate by 50 basis points (bps), bringing the range to 4.75%–5.00%. The Fed's updated "dot plot" projections indicate that more is to come: another 50bps by year-end, 100bps in 2025, and 50bps in 2026. This would bring the target range to a terminal rate of 2.75-3.00%.

The focus has now clearly shifted from inflation towards employment. Inflation is nearly back to target levels, with US headline inflation dropping to 2.5% year-on-year in August (from 2.9% in July), and core inflation steady at 3.2% (unchanged from the previous month). Core prices – excluding the lagging housing component – rose at a much slower pace of 1.8%, according to data from the White House.

On September 12, the European Central Bank (ECB) implemented its second 25-basis-point rate cut of the year, lowering the deposit facility rate to 3.50%. ECB President Christine Lagarde expressed confidence that inflation will return to the 2% target by 2025. The ECB's staff projections align with this outlook, predicting core inflation will drop from 2.9% this year to 2.3% in 2025, and eventually to 2.0% in 2026. Like the Fed, the ECB now seems more concerned about the economy than inflation at this stage, slightly lowering its gross domestic product (GDP) forecasts for 2024, 2025, and 2026, while cautioning that economic growth risks remained tilted to the downside.

French sovereign bonds underperformed in September amid rising concerns about the country's fiscal outlook, a fragmented parliament and slowing growth. For the first time since 2008, 10-year French OATs traded at higher yields than their Spanish counterparts. However, the impact on French corporates was minimal, and no new trades were initiated as a result.

Credit spreads closed the month broadly unchanged, with the reference benchmark closing at a government OAS spread of 120, just 1bp wider over the month. The automotive sector underperformed, widening by about 20bps due to various profit warnings and negative news (e.g., Stellantis eyeing job cuts, Volkswagen considering factory closures, potential fines over European climate goals, and competition from China). The energy sector widened by roughly 5bps, while other sectors were mostly flat. Higher-beta segments were mixed, with corporate hybrids widening by 8bps and BB-rated bonds by around 14bps. In contrast, Tier 2s were broadly flat, and AT1s outperformed, tightening by about 4bps.

Portfolio review

We have significantly reduced our exposure to the automotive sector, driven by a weaker outlook and potential rating pressure on certain issuers. In the primary market, we participated selectively in new issues across the seniority spectrum – always on a relative switch basis and keeping the overall risk level constant. New deals we participated in include financials (AT1, T2, Senior Non-Preferred), Corporate Hybrids and Senior unsecured bonds. We added two new names for diversification – one food services company and a capital goods issuer that we had previously held in the past.

We withdrew from some new deals that priced below our fair value estimates and observed that some of the tighter deals have struggled to perform post-pricing. It remains key to stay disciplined with regards to new issues.

Performance analysis

The Vontobel Fund – Euro Corporate Bond (I Share Class) outperformed its benchmark during the month of September. The performance was mostly driven by allocation, while selection was flat this month.

In terms of allocation, our overweight position in insurance and underweight in the automotive sector contributed positively to performance. We continued to reduce our exposure to the automotive sector throughout the month due to its ongoing weakness.

In terms of selection, we have seen a wide dispersion across our bonds. Banking and transportation were strong contributors, with banking benefiting from slide gains in AT1s, and transportation boosted by a few individual names. However, these gains were partially offset by weakness in automotive names that underperformed amid sector profit warnings and weaker outlooks. Within the telecom sector, telco hybrids underperformed, with one idiosyncratic name affected by fast money selling. Despite this, we believe the issuer's fundamentals remain solid, and we expect the bonds to recover once the flows become more balanced. Similarly, within utilities, hybrids lagged behind senior bonds in September.

Outlook

Despite the strong market rally year-to-date, there are several reasons to remain optimistic heading into year-end. The Fed has joined the rate-cutting cycle, which, combined with a resilient economy and the possibility of a soft landing, should bode well for markets and risk assets - including corporate bonds and equities. Supply in the second half of the year is expected to be more limited, as much of it was front-loaded in the first half of 2024. Credit fundamentals remain solid, with only some idiosyncratic exceptions, but no signs of widespread deterioration.

At the sector level, we remain cautious about the automotive sector, which faces multiple headwinds (i.e., weak demand outlook, delay of EV purchases by customers, competition from China and potential rating pressure for some names). In contrast, we continue to favor the banking sector, which offers limited supply expectations, very strong credit quality/capitalization, and robust overall corporate fundamentals. We therefore keep screening for attractive opportunities.

We don't intend to increase risk or duration at this time but keep our exposure to the higher beta segment steady while seeking relative value switches.

Investment risks

- Securities with a lower credit quality means a higher risk that an issuer may fail to meet its obligations. The investment value may fall if an issuer's credit rating is downgraded.
- Asset-backed and mortgage-backed securities, and their underlying receivables are often intransparent. The sub-fund may also be subject to a higher credit and/or prepayment risk.
- Using derivatives generally creates leverage and entails valuation risks and operational risks. Leverage magnifies gains but also losses. Over-the-counter derivatives involve corresponding counterparty risks.
- CoCo-Bonds may entail significant risks such as coupon cancellation risk, capital structure inversion risk, call extension risk.
- The sub-fund's investments may be subject to sustainability risks. The sustainability risks that the sub-fund may be subject to are likely to have an immaterial impact on the value of the sub-funds' investments in the medium to long term due to the mitigating nature of the sub-fund's ESG approach. The sub-funds' performance may be positively or negatively affected by its sustainability strategy. The ability to meet social or environmental objectives might be affected by incomplete or inaccurate data from third-party providers. Information on how environmental and social objectives are achieved and how sustainability risks are managed in this sub-fund may be obtained from vontobel.com/sfdr.
